A page of a document written in Latin script. The text is a continuous flow of words without distinct paragraphs. The script is medieval in style, with a mix of large and small letters, and some words are emphasized in larger fonts. The bottom of the page has a musical notation written in a simpler script, possibly a chant or melody corresponding to the text above. The page is numbered at the bottom, indicating this is part of a larger text.